Farewell my Dearest Father wherew you do Sise, ay telle think Byrn Daughter is now condemned to die - In Heaven amoungst the Angels I hope say soul will dwell, so ^{now} my Dearest Father I bid you Fries farewell, soon as these words were spoken in came the man of death, and kindled up the fire to stop this Virgins Breath, she cast her eyes to Heaven Good Jesus she did call, Receive my soul to glory before they fall to fall

There has ~~been~~ ^{been} but little rain here since ~~1st~~ ^{1st} June 1838 to now Aug 14th I dont think the ground has been out 210 There was a Merchants Daughter, whose friends all Papist were,

The Lord her Heart did suffer to seek his family Prayer She soon obtained his favor Delighted in his Name renouned her former Idols content to suffer shame, with a rushing & with weeping to her mother she did go assemble all the Council that they the truth might know, and when they were assembled the damsel they did call, and cast her into prison to frighten her or thale

The more they shew to frighten her the ~~former~~ ^{former} she did endure, I value not your torment nor yet your fiery flame, I hope that Christ my Saviour will ease my mortal frame, Before the Judge they carried her hoping she would turn, But when their efforts failed them she was condemned to burn, took off her Golden Bracelets with cords they bound her fast, & Lord give me patience to die for them at last or come her mother her daughter to behold and in her hands she brought a Book bound over with gold, take hence from me those Idols convey them from my sight, and give to me my Bible ^{wherein} I take delight keep not for me dear mother pray be content The first who formed against me when I was innocent, torment & do your office with me as you think best I hope that Christ my Saviour will take my soul to rest, ye ladies of the City ~~mark~~ mark well these words said she, yourselves by bitter pity & mourn for your decay, amidst your lives fair I may & dont delay —
